COMPLEX PROBLEMS & SIMPLE SOLUTIONS

Risk Management Training for Sorority and Fraternity Leaders

Fraternity and sorority leaders face complex problems in the area of risk management including policy knowledge and implementation, campus culture, behaviors and actions of other organizations on campus and – let's face it – behaviors of some members.

Maybe it's time for the leaders in our communities to get on the same page; have hard conversations, become educated and embrace that YOU are the change agents of the fraternity and sorority community. As a result of the training, participants will engage in a community conversation around problems in the area of risk management. They will achieve a better understanding around the framework of stages of change, harm reduction, and brain development. Those who attend will develop a common understanding of the FIPG Risk Management Policy around alcohol and drugs. Information can also be tailored to include university policy and how the information compares and contrasts. Ultimately, participants will learn how to create safe events in compliance with the policy through event planning and prevention resources.

This risk management training is geared towards fraternity and sorority leaders (including Presidents, Risk Managers, Social Chairs, Advisors). Based on goals and objectives, the training can be presented in a two, three or four hour format. This is not a keynote intended for a large group audience, it is a training geared for around 100 participants at most.

Our problems are complex; however, solutions to these problems are really quite simple. It's time to give community leaders the framework and tools needed to create safer environments.
